What we aim to do for you

Upgrading your Docmail account to include Dotpost functionality allows you access to the Dotpost Administration System for as long as you have a live Docmail account in accordance with the Docmail terms and conditions.

Should your Docmail account be disabled in accordance with the Docmail terms and conditions your Dotpost account will also be automatically terminated.

Dotpost functionality will provide you with access to Dotpost mailings through your Docmail Account.

You will be able to send Dotpost mailings to any end users within your data that have a Dotpost account.

What we cannot do for you

We do not guarantee that you will be able to send Dotpost mailings to your end users and we accept no responsibility for ensuring that your end users have Dotpost accounts.

Whether an end user receives a Dotpost mailing and/or a Docmail mailing is entirely at your discretion and we do not accept any responsibility for the mailings received by end users.

What you are responsible for

You must not access or use Dotpost or the Dotpost API in order to build a product and/or service which competes with Dotpost.

You must ensure that any data you provide complies with the Data Protection Act 1998 and does not infringe any third party intellectual property rights.

We will not accept any liability for any costs, howsoever arising, that result from your data breaching either the Data Protection Act 1998 or third party intellectual property rights and you agree to indemnify us against any such costs.

Other

These terms and conditions apply to anyone who has upgraded their Docmail account to include Dotpost functionality.

These terms and conditions are subject always to the Docmail terms and conditions and are supplemental to the Docmail terms and conditions. For the avoidance of doubt where you have upgraded your Docmail account to include Dotpost functionality both these terms and conditions and the Docmail terms and conditions will apply.

Where the Docmail service is being used the Docmail terms and conditions apply, where the Dotpost service is being used the Docmail terms and conditions and the Dotpost terms and conditions apply.

Where there is any discrepancy between the Docmail terms and conditions and the Dotpost terms and conditions the Docmail terms and conditions will take precedence.
